Obituary

George Patrick Brooks was an awesome husband, father, son and brother. He lived his life based on principles of kindness, giving and service.

Born September 9, 1955 in Washington state, his family soon moved to SE Utah where the spectacular red rock monuments surely influenced his love of geology. He spent years working as a geologist focused on groundwater exploration and environmental remediation. He enjoyed working on technically complex, high-visibility projects. He also enjoyed spending weekends working in rural Mexico to deliver potable groundwater to small villages.

While not at work, he spent time as a farmer and cook. He took great pleasure in cooking for friends and family and will be fondly remembered for giving away extra produce and chicken eggs.

He was a lover of animals and took in several rescue animals.

He would do anything for his family.

Survivors include his wife Julie, son Kenneth Michael, daughter Ramona, sister Kaye Brooks Stambaugh, brothers Michael Brooks and Alan Anderson.

And many nieces, nephews, in-laws, great friends and beloved pets.
